Dear Y6 Children

As you will know, next week is SATs Week. It seems we have been working towards this moment all year. I know how hard you have worked and I know you are more than ready.

Whilst these tests are super important, it is only a few tests! They do not assess how amazing and special and individual you all are. It is only a snap shot of a part of you! You are all wonderful children and I know the entire team are especially proud of you. We know you are ready to show what you can do.

I do want you to do your very best and demonstrate all the things you have learned at Primary School and in the run up to SATs this year. You have worked really hard and so have the adults involved in your learning. Therefore, please make sure you get some rest, go to bed early and prepare for Monday. Remember, we are having a breakfast each morning for you from 8:15 and if you are not here on time for the start of the day, I shall be giving you a call myself!

Here's to a successful week!
