Remote 1
(2019-2020)

Nothing really prepares you as a Head Teacher for a world health pandemic, but I have been really impressed with our school community in galvanising together and working so productively. I have been working with the Camden Head Teachers in addressing things as they arise, but our focus for now is ensuring remote learning is set up and our in school provision allows key workers opportunity to carry on serving the country. It is my birthday on Saturday. I've got a lovely day planned at a place called Living Room! Keep smiling all! By working together, we will maintain a strong community. Don't forget to check our @PrimroseHillRW....there may be a few little surprises from time to time! Robin

Key Stage 1

Y3 & Y4

Paul was really impressed with his children's work on Kindlekrax.

Well done to Y3 & Y4 who have all been working hard this week. The staff are very impressed with your learning and efforts.

Y5 & Y6

Fantastic writing from Edith (Y5): The stormy night sky loomed over the village as the bright beams of the lighthouse lit up the angry seas. The villages' cheers were deafened by the frothing waves as they crashed onto the cliffs. While the seagulls' shrieks rang out loudly through the wind, the determined birds struggled to fly against the wind. The lighthouse stood proudly, upright, strong against the wind, and the villagers watched the beam of light come, and go, come, and go. They watched the beam through their lit up windows. As the waves came down on the rocks, the lighthouse stood, lighting up the ships' way at night.

Lotfi's Design (Kestrels) Well done Y5 & Y6 :)

General News

Richard and I met virtually this week with Lia White on an official handover. They plan to video a meeting to introduce her formally to the EYFS and she will gradually take over the remote learning. She also has plans to get to know families by phone after she takes up post. It is odd for Richard not to have a formal leaving and well deserved send off, but once this situation is all over, we will make sure he is recognised for the excellent work he has done for Primrose Hill. It's not goodbye....yet!

Keep checking the website, texts and twitter. There's a lot going on but we are trying to keep things busy and lots for the children to be occupied with. A big well done to Isabel and Jacob who have been magnificent techsperts this week in helping folks get online and learning. Also to Jordan and his fairly challenge—the water bottle one was my fave! Our in-school team have been wonderful. We have had to organise food hampers and this took a lot of man power. Thank you Gem and Lee and our chef Gloria. Bit a big well done to everyone. We have such a great community here with everybody playing their part in helping school take place, albeit in a slightly different way. I will update you about Easter provision next week.....
